Freshmen Olympics

Softball is always easier with an audience.

During the normally hectic and alien times of orientation, freshmen experienced Colorado College in a unique way. They were the guinea pigs for the revised freshmen orientation program. Freshmen found the fun and frolic of previous years supplemented by discussions and intellectual diversions. They participated in the traditional Freshmen Olympics, for isn't that the best way to get to know your brother or sister wing?

Fall Changes: A Prelude to Homecoming

The gala affair of Colorado College's Ninth Presidential Inauguration marked a period of growth and change at Colorado College. For this event, a fresh coat of paint miraculously covered Cutler Hall, Leisure Program Committees worked long hours to fill the week with cultural diversions, and the preppy Saga picnic exceeded the beliefs of students and administration alike. Newly inaugurated President Riley appeared in the College's newest acquisition, a tailor-made gold-threaded, heavy inaugural gown.

The Senior Class rose to the momentous occasion by sponsoring a half time float competition, the All-Star Kazoo band and, an all-campus party, as well as the traditional dowdy cheerleading squad.

After the CC football team defeated Milton College, all retired to primp for the Inaugural Ball. CC students discovered the joys of blown fuses and borrowed ties (not to mention shirts, dresses, coats and shoes). A return to the traditional three bands pleased all music lovers and claustrophobics. Since none of the bands appeared in the Broadmoor West, submarine race watchers had to park on the west side of the Broadmoor in order to take advantage of the scenic beauty of the lake (not to mention anything else).

"Oh God, our help. . ."

The gala event attracted many interested observers.

West Side Story

When the Colorado College Drama Department finally decides to put on a Broadway musical, they do it in style. The unique set design created a fine setting for the imaginative choreography. The versatile cast combined these elements with their talent to create a wonderful production.

The CC community enjoyed seeing the growth and development of the production. The cast held open rehearsals during homecoming week. Even Mom, Dad, and Irving T. Rastalmeyer, class of '32 had the opportunity to witness the hard work and dedication showed by the performers.

Rushees, Sandy Urioste, Jennifer Simus and Kathy Malone, it's been a long day.

The annual event of second block break, sorority rush resulted in over one hundred women pledging. Rushees were treated to delicious desserts, entertaining skits, pleasant company trite conversation, and tired smile muscles. (It is difficult to smile and maintain poise after telling the fiftieth person what your first block class was and discreetly shoving under the couch the delicious dessert you just spilled on the floor.)

Under the direction of Coach Horst Richardson, the Tigers finished the season with a 15-6-1 record and a trip to the NCAA playoffs in Wheaton, Illinois. Although the final game against Wheaton College was unspectacular, the rest of the season was successful. The 15 wins matched the college single-season record.

The CC women's volleyball team prolonged its 1981 season by hosting the Division II National tournament. The ladies with fingertip control finished their regular season at 18-20, and then held their own in the first games of the tourney. Co-captain Kathy Yamada and sophomore Camille Bzdek repeated as All-Region VII Tournament Team selections, while senior Sandy Collier, co-captain Jeanine Rodriguez, junior Annette Hairston, and freshmen Liane Morrison and Jan Bollenbacher provided support for a well-rounded team.

Football

The 1981 Tigers had a much improved 5-5 season under Head Coach Jerry Carle. A handful of seniors provided stability for a promising young team. Tom Southall and Scott Clementson, high school teammates, earned offensive and defensive rookie titles. Thurman Walker and Pat Geonetta led the ground attacks, as Scott Driggers' passing opened the airways. Giff Asimos became our first quarterback in years. The Bad Bengal defense allowed only 14.2 points per game average while the Terrible Tiger offense averaged 18.5 points per game.

Julie Dunn wins another one

First year men's coach Ted Casteneda used 1981 as a building season for his young team. Their goal was to have at least six men running each race, and they achieved that goal in all but one meet. Senior Reid Kelly was the morale builder, Jim Rice brought a lot of distance experience into the season, and freshman Steve West showed great undeveloped potential.

Women's coach Bonnie Everhart, also in her first year at CC, took good individual runners and organized them into a team. Sophomore Julie Dunn placed third or better in every regular season meet, and placed sixth in the Regional meet to qualify for her second National competition. The team will not lose any runners to graduation, and should perform well next year.

Blue Key had a successful start this year with the Tutoring Program, Welcomee/Welcomer Program, and Homecoming weekend, which entailed the Oktoberfest Lunch and the Dance. Other activities included winter and spring choir receptions, the absurd symposium—"The Wrongs of Spring," Reception for Scholastic Achievement for faculty and Honors Convocation. New projects for this year included a Public Speaking lecture and participation with the Senior Survival Program.

Women's Swimming

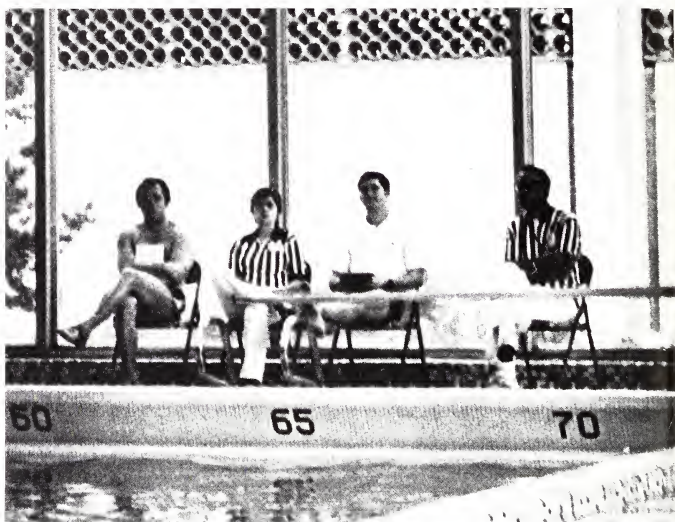

Swimmers spend an inordinate amount of time waiting, then perform intensely for only a few minutes at most. The psychological preparation is tremendous, but some swimmers master the mental skills to excel in the physical acts.

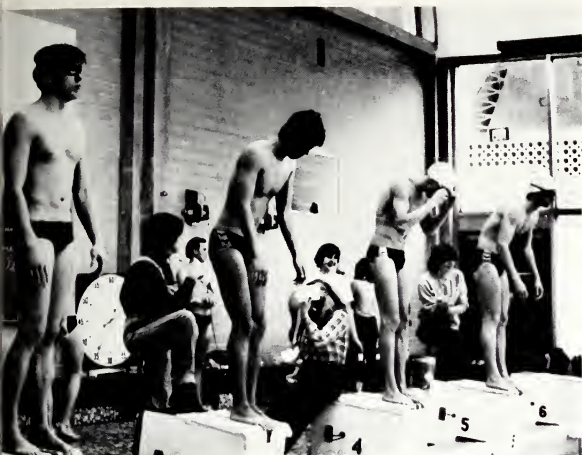

The CC Women's Swim Team enjoyed a successful 1981-82 season. Although they lost some meets due to a lack of depth, individual swimmers consistently placed first in their races. Sue Wolfe, Melissa Mantak, Becky Price, Carrie Jenkins, and diver Laura Luckett all qualified for national competition.

Men's Swimming

Here come de Judge

The Big Cats were led by Eric Tibby, who qualified for Nationals but had to pay his own way because of new post-season competition financing policies. On the lighter side, Rob, Mike, and Barry were left temporarily stranded at a Texas motel. The team had been on the road for an hour before the absences were noticed and the bus turned back to retrieve the forgotten swimmers.

Ready . . .

GO!

Despite major controversies, the men's basketball team finished the season, maintained their unity, and retained their coach, Mike Williams. Freshmen Thad Floore and David Scott added height to the roster; Dan Sarlo and Captain Colin Simpson provided leadership; the rest of the team supplied the depth necessary to tackle a tough travel schedule.

The Lady Tigers made it through their transition year in fine shape. Linda Puckett coached them through the grueling season to the Region 7 championship. The ladies then flew to Oklahoma City for their second national tournament. Seniors Janyce Jaramillo, Tawnya Gilliland, and Arlene Green led the team; sophomore standout Debbie Nalty provided strong inside play; and Kris Lund came back from knee surgery to inspire the women.

The 1981-82 season frustrated the mighty Tigers. Plagued by injuries and inconsistency, their record failed to accurately reflect their talent. The eight seniors indoctrinated four freshmen who will carry on the Tiger tradition. Doug Lidster was selected to the All WCHA first team.

Once again Colorado College was graced with many cultural events. The numerous organizations and special interest groups brought varied presentations to CC students. No one student could attend all the educational and entertainment programs. Contrary to the beliefs of some the list of offerings proved that culture and education do exist at CC.

Graduation A Year Ends

After most underclassmen abandoned the campus, seniors found time for parties, receptions, rehearsals and perhaps packing. Graduation festivities culminated the momentous week. After a rainy rehearsal and a crowded dinner-dance, the class of 1982 graduated on a cloudy memorial day. Justice Sandra Day O'Connor spoke to the graduates and a large mostly standing crowd. Popping corks and cameras lent a festive air to the occasion.

In creating this yearbook we had a simple theme : major goals in mind. We wanted this yearbook to reflect faces of the school and be a valuable remembrance/reference book twenty years from now.

Amazingly, two hyper-involved seniors who had procrastinated developed to a fine art succeeded in producing this book. We hope you enjoy it. As we're finishing up the book we have a few people to whom we would like to recognize and thank you for their hard work and dedication to the book.

Our greatest debt and biggest thanks go to Rara Nakagawa, our photo editor. He organized photographers for whatever needed to be shot and developed almost every roll of film that we used. We could always count on a cheerful "What's up?" any time we called him.

Melanie Beck headed the sports section. She faithfully used the rosters to identify all the athletes and cheerleaders. She completed all her pages for each deadline (some even in the afternoon of graduation).

Wendy Milne did the wing and dorm pages. She was frequently seen asking friends, "Do you know who this person is?"

Eric Smith and his staff of Mark Skinner, Pete Thorsness, and Meg Carpenter did the senior section. Eric was the main force behind organizing the section and printed almost all the section's photos. He also gave terrific neck rubs during times of pressure.

Marty McElhiney headed the faculty section. Marty usually spent deadline nights (and very early morning) frantically looking through the proof book searching for more candids and placing line tape on his pages. Remember

Marty, no writing on the art board! Kristen Wexels organized the organizations and unfortunately darkroom problems messed up her organization, thus she ran into problems with photos.

Linda Boesch was in charge of selling and distributing the book and also gave us hugs whenever we needed them.

We would also like to thank the major contributing photographers: Sharon Yanagi, Carlton Burch, Steve Weimer, Marc Linsey, Matt Jones, Randy Nakagawa, Greg Anderson, Robin Hyden, Liz McLean, and everyone else that took rolls of Cutler film and shot photos for the Nugget. Also, thank you to everyone that contributed photos to this book. We really appreciate all your help.

And a BIG thanks also goes to our friends who supported us and understood us during the pressures and hectic times of the yearbook deadlines. You know we care about you, but we didn't always express it very well. Much love and many thanks to all of you.
